If you revisit an event and fail

What did you expect? This woman seems to think she can waltz in with her magic and fix everything, but that's not how things work in the real world. You all are broken for a reason. And even if you weren't, how would you fix things now? Trying and failing is just making the Shadows stronger.

If your Shadow is defeated

You don't know how you didn't see it before; something must have been altering your perception. With your lens, you see some sort of strong direct Shadow connection between Masako/Masahiro and Death!

If your Courage reaches 4

Ok, maybe it's worth a try for something other than killing everyone. Death's wearing a mask, and that might be powerful enough to let you put the Doorway in overdrive. And with all your separate wanderings, someone has to know something about where this started, besides with Philemon.
